Germany To Accept Is the Word

Paris, April 11.—(United Press).—The reparations commission today accepted the report of the Dawes committee.

The action of the reparations commission on the report came with unexpected suddenness, after the various members had reported upon the report of the committee.

Louis Barthou, French member and president of the commission, announced France's acceptance after talking with Premier Poincare this morning. Sir John Brabury, British member, informed his colleagues that MacDonald and the British Labor cabinet had approved the plan.

The Belgian and Italian members followed in line and shortly after 6 o'clock acceptance of the proposal was announced with the provision that Germany must accept them as a whole.

At that time word came from Berlin that the German government had virtually decided to accept the Dawes report.

Charleroi council met in adjourned session yesterday afternoon, but at the request of Wayne D. Meyers, district engineer, No. 14 of the State Highway department, the meeting was abbreviated in its nature to comply with a request that the councilman membership proceed with Mr. Meyers to Lincoln avenue extension, a thoroughfare which council proposes to improve in collaboration with the state.

Mr. Meyers recommended where and how places on the avenue should be repaved; he also said that the State Highway department expected to advertise the improvement of the road for the state's proportion from the borough line to the crossroads at Taylor's Run—a standard concrete road, about two miles in length.

Council will again meet on Thursday, April 17.

Johnstown, April 11.—(United Press).—State police today were patrolling the streets of Beaverdale, near here, to prevent a clash between members of the Ku Klux Klan and Anti-Klansmen. The officers were rushed here last night when a group of young men opposed to the hooded order burned a flaming circle as an anti-klan demonstration. A crowd gathered around the burning circle and 12 members of the constabulary under Sergeant order sent the people to their homes. No disorder was reported.

Pain Causes Woman TO LEAP FROM WINDOW

Pittsburgh, April 11.—(United Press).—Insane from pain, Lester Miller, 23, of Eigel, Pa., leaped from a six-story window of the Allegheny Hospital today and was instantly killed. Miller had been under treatment for a foot ailment which required that his feet be kept in plaster casts.

There is little doubt but that some of the students under Mr. Maldaner's regime used the Mail as a tool for a practical joke at his expense, and through this medium accomplished their ends. We are of the opinion that the Mail is not as serious as it comprehends. However, it is peculiar business for person or persons, school boys or others, to use an educator as the butt of a practical joke.

It is inasmuch as he is entitled, by reason of his ability and education, to the respect of those whom he is endeavoring to lead into channels of usefulness.

The Mail does not intentionally, injure any person or persons, and if inasmuch as he is entitled, by reason of his ability and education, to the respect of those whom he is endeavoring to lead into channels of usefulness.

We are willing to make correction.

Two Men Are Found Sleeping In Automobile

Patrolmen Gillingham and Fields of the Monongahela force arrested Peter Koskonas and Caster Grelasko, both of Ellsworth, yesterday morning at 2:30 o'clock, when they were found asleep in a touring car parked in front of a residence on an unimproved lot of the city named.

The machine bore license number 65,852. Koskonas, who said that he owned the car, had in his possession a 1924 driver's license, but the owner's license of the machine was missing.

A search of the car revealed three 12-gallon jugs and a 10-gallon container, which was empty, but according to the police, had contained moonshine whisky. Koskonas stated that he had been at Newell where he assisted a friend pack up his goods preparatory to moving to the state of Ohio. He stated this man gave him the jugs and container, and that he was taking them home. Mayor H. T. Billick fined Koskonas $25 and costs, on a charge of being a suspicious person, and $10 for operating a motor vehicle without the necessary owner's license. Grelasko was fined $10 and costs on the charge of being a suspicious person.

Second Session of the North Charleroi School And Improvement Association Last Night Even More Successful Than First

H. S. HALL MAKES ADDRESS

Scout Executive Emphasizes the Need of Constructive And Co-operative Forms to Develop Growing Boys And Girls—Association to Have Booth

A much larger and more enthusiastic group of citizens and school patrons attended the second meeting of the North Charleroi School and Community Improvement Association last night than attended the first meeting a month ago. A decided interest in definite community work was manifested.

The story hour for children, between the ages of 3 to 8 years, was conducted by Mildred Bane and Margaret Dillon, who kept the little tots interested by stories, games and music while the mothers were free to enjoy the meeting of the Association.

The boys from the Third grade, under the supervision of Miss Velma Jones gave a flag drill, acquiring themselves with honor and reflected well the instruction of their teacher in group action.

The address of the evening was given by Scout Executive, H. S. Hall, on the subject, "Play and Development For Good Citizenship in the Community." Mr. Hall emphasized the need of constructive and cooperative forms of play to develop growing boys and girls, whose qualities and ideals are so necessary to good citizenship. His address was exceedingly helpful and practical and brought forth constructive discussion of the playground situation, and also of adult responsibility, as a leader in the cultivation of a spirit of good citizenship and civic pride in the community.

The association voted to have a case ice cream and candy booth at the annual school exhibit which will be held in the school building next Thursday afternoon and evening, April 17, the proceeds to go toward a fund for operating expenses of the organization. Several subscriptions were taken for a child welfare magazine for which a club is being formed.

BUL BUL MAKES HIT WITH AUDITORS

The first performance of "Bul Bul" the operetta given under the auspices of the Monday Musical club and staged under the direction of Prof. Earl A. Braman, superintendent of music in the local schools, was witnessed last night by a large audience. The performance was a decided success, Merle as the groom, George Kline, being worthy of much praise for the manner in which they carried out their respective parts. Much credit is also due Professor Braman for his untiring efforts in making the play one that will stand out among the best.

The story deals with the lives of Princess Bul Bul which part is successfully portrayed by Miss Ethel Earth and Prince Caspian, by Donald Corkle, which part is also very well rendered. Mr. Corkle showing remarkable vocal talent. Princess Bul Bul is betrothed to Prince Caspian by her father, King Edna Welch as Ida with their funny antics were greatly enjoyed by the entire audience. Like credit is due the other members of the cast, namely, Mrs. Thelma Lowstuter, Mr. Pugsley, Ben Harris, Harry Yon, Bennie Trnavsky and William Sichini.

An added feature of the entertainment was a solo rendered by C.

ARTICLE PROMPTED BY JEST MAKERS

Monday's Mail contained an article—an ostensible report of a basketball game that was purely fiction on the part of the author—presumably a prank of school boys. The news mention contained the name of Henry Maldaner, a member of the faculty of the High School, and the gentleman avers that he is the victim of ribald jest, and feels that, as a comparative stranger, the article is malignant in its tendencies.

The Mail is in receipt of numerous news mention—sporting accounts, et cetera, many of them unsigned. Some of them are palpably false on their face; the ever-ready waste basket is their receptacle, but in the case of the High School, where athletics are so freely indulged in, it is of interest is manifest that when the article in question was left on my desk, its authenticity was not questioned.

The Mail does not intentionally, injure any person or persons, and if inasmuch as he is entitled, by reason of his ability and education, to the respect of those whom he is endeavoring to lead into channels of usefulness.

We are willing to make correction.

WOMAN CLAIMS TO BE MURDERESS; EVIDENCE LACKING

Hartford, Conn., April 11.—(United Press)—State police are investigating the story told by Mrs. Johanna Tell, of New York, that she shot and killed Charles Blair on his chicken farm near Killingsworth, it was said at the superintendent's office here today.

No evidence of a crime on the farm nine miles from the town of Durham, has been found, the superintendent's office said.

Mrs. Tell was laboring under great emotional strain when she told her story in the office of District Attorney McGeehan.

She said she spent the night on the farm with her daughter, who lived with her and Blair, after the crime, and then the next day took a train to New York, going to the home of an uncle, whom she told what she had done. On his advice she went to the district attorney's office.

Police said the woman repeated her story several times without variation despite the fact she was subjected to severe questioning.

According to Mrs. Tell's statement, the murder took place Tuesday night, but Connecticut authorities said they had found persons who saw Blair on Wednesday.

Meanwhile Mrs. Tell is a prisoner in Bronx county jail, pending completion of investigation of her story.

SIMPLICITY TO

MARK FUNERAL OF STINNES

Berlin, April 11.—(United Press)—Simplicity which marked the life of Germany's industrial captain, Hugo Stinnes, will attend his funeral ceremonies. The place of cremation has not been determined, but will probably be Berlin.

"No pomp, no show, just simple rites; then burn my body," was among the last wishes of the millionaire, who died in a sanatorium last night.

The family which loved him, was gathered at his bedside at the end. They say Stinnes recovered from day-long delirium and had some moments in which his dying thought was for Franco-German understanding and real peace for the country he served after his fashion.

In life, Stinnes shunned publicity, but the news of his end overshadowed all else in Germany. The experts' reports were almost neglected in the tragedy to Germany of the loss of her foremost industrialist, who knit together the threads of a hundred industries and set all wheels turning in bringing him greater wealth.

She had arrived at a little station in Vermont on a cold, stormy night and had hired an old man to drive her to her friend's farm, up among the hills. The roads were in bad condition from the storm and the ride was altogether an uncomfortable one. "How much do I owe you?" she asked on arriving at her destination. "Well, ma'am," said the old man, "my riding price is a dollar, but seeing as it's such a bad night and the ride so terrible, I'll call it 75 cents."—Chicago Tribune.

Knew the Anecdote. A tourist and his wife, after their return from abroad, were telling the wonders they had seen at the Louvre in Paris. The husband mentioned with enthusiasm a picture which represented Adam and Eve and the serpent in the Garden of Eden, in connection with the eating of the forbidden fruit. The wife also waxed enthusiastic and interpreted the remark: "Yes, we found the picture most interesting, because, you see, we knew the anecdote."

Wives and Goats Tabooed. Ancient records of York county, Me., preserved in the courthouse at Alfred, show that at one time goats and women were not allowed on the Isles of Shoals. One fisherman brought his wife there at the same time importing some goats. Lengthy legal battles were waged concerning the matter, and finally it was settled that the goats must go but the wife could stay.

The Fool and Wise Man. A fool tries to get square with others, but the wise man spends his time in blocking the attempts of others to get square with him.

AUTHORESS KILLS TO ATTRACT FOLK TO HER BOOK

Portland, Oregon, April 11.—(United Press)—To attract attention to the book she had written Miss Doan Hollis, killed her kindly, white-haired old land-lady, and then sought the police for publicity.

Calmly confessing to the murder, Miss Hollis said:

"I did it so the world might know the truth and read my book: 'The Living God of the Bible is Satan, the Evil One.'"

"I knew there was one way to make the world hear the truth. If I killed myself, the world would say, 'Just another crazy woman.' They wouldn't heed the warning, I knew I had to kill someone else."

And so, she said, she looked around for a victim. There was Mrs. Eva Bradley, 65, her landlady. Obtaining a revolver, she shot the elderly lady who had befriended her.

"It was only an incident under the demon God," she said calmly.

INVENTOR AND

WIFE DIVORCED

London, April 11.—(United Press).—Guglielmo Marconi, inventor, and his wife, who was the Hon. Beatrice O'Brien, half-sister of Lord Inchiquin, have been divorced at Fiume, according to the Daily Express.

Mrs. Marconi immediately married the Marquis Liborio Marignoli, at the same time resigning from her post as Lady in Waiting to the Queen, as divorces, while recognized, are not looked upon with favor by her majesty.

Signor Marconi is reported engaged to a charming marquise.

Stop That Backache!

Many Charleroi Folks Have Found the Way.

Is a dull, nerve-racking backache wearing you out? Do you feel older and slower than you should? Are you tired, weak and nervous; find it impossible to be happy, or enjoy the good times around you? Then there's something wrong and likely it's your kidneys. Why not get at the cause? Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Your neighbors recommend Doan's. Read what this Charleroi resident says:

Mrs. E. Hogan, 738 Fallowfield Ave., says: "My back seemed to never stop aching. I was so lame and sore I could hardly get around. When I stooped, sharp pains shot through me and my kidneys didn't act right either. Doan's Pills cured me."

The above statement was given December 21, 1918, and on March 15, 1922, Mrs. Hogan said: "Although I have had no occasion to use Doan's since, I have as high an opinion of them as ever."

One of World's Most Famous Mountain Roads

Overlooking Los Angeles, Cal., is one of the world's most remarkable mountain roads, extending from Laurel canyon to the summit of Lookout mountain. While just wide enough for one vehicle, the road is perfectly safe for automobiles, as it is built to ascend by one route and descend by another.

The curves, hairpin turns, switchbacks, etc., are numerous, but all built so scientifically that there is no danger. The road is carved from the side of a hill which is so precipitous that in one place there are six levels rising one above the other, all visible from the same point; in fact, the hill appears to be terraced with the zig-zag of highway. The surface is of decomposed granite and the outside edge has been fenced with stout timbers.

From the summit—occupied by a summer hotel—one has a view that is without a rival on the Pacific coast. The ocean is but a few miles distant with the Santa Catalina and San Clemente islands on the horizon, while along the shore are the score of towns and resorts built upon the sands. About thirty cities and towns are visible from the summit, with Los Angeles almost directly below.

Immense Freak Boulder in the Berkshire Hills

Among the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts, there is a tremendous boulder, weighing some 170 tons, perched upon a flat rock, apparently so nicely balanced that a glance at it almost convinces a person that but little force is needed to throw it over.

It is called the "Balance rock," but despite its name and appearance, it is firmly fixed and makes no movement whatever. Another strange feature of this freak is that the boulder is of an entirely different formation from that of the Berkshire limestone upon which it rests, and it is supposed that in some prehistoric age it was torn from some mountain height by a glacier and at last delicately placed on the limestone bed.

At Chetyero, in Burma, British India, nature has superimposed an immense boulder upon a rocky elevation, and the natives have seized upon it as a fit place for a temple of worship. Here they have erected a small pagoda. So evenly balanced is this great stone that it sways, temple and all, back and forth when a strong wind is blowing.—Detroit News.

Definition of Factory

In modern usage the term factory covers any establishment, with its buildings and equipment, used for the manufacture of goods. The legal definition, however, varies widely in different states, but is usually based upon the number of workers. One such extreme definition makes a factory "any place where two or more persons are engaged in working for hire or reward in any handicraft." C. D. Wright's definition reads: "A factory is an establishment where several workmen are collected for the purpose of obtaining greater and cheaper conveniences for labor than they could procure individually at their houses; for producing results by their combined efforts which they could not accomplish separately, and for preventing the loss occasioned by carrying articles from place to place during the several processes necessary to complete their manufacture." Another distinguishing mark of a factory is the ownership of all the tools or implements of production by the employer.

Yucatan's Vehicles

Yucatan clings to antiquated means of transportation, which include the carreta, the coche, the volan and the volante, although the introduction of automobiles bids fair to eliminate these vehicles. The carreta is a heavy two-wheeled truck; the coche, a light four-wheeled, rubber tired, rigid topped carriage, with body supported on heavy leather straps, for travel on the rocky country roads, similar to the stage coach of America's old west, and the volante, a very heavy four-wheeled vehicle somewhat like a victoria, but with the body supported on heavy leather straps, used for rough travel in the rural districts.

Solving the Problem

A young salesman had embezzled from his kind hearted employer a considerable sum of money, and had lost every cent of it on the races. He was apprehended, and the boss didn't know just what to do about it. "Keep him on the job and deduct what he owes you from his pay," counseled the adviser. "But," wailed the victim, "the amount is too large. He could never make it up that way. His wages are too small." The other ruminated for a moment. Then his face cleared. "Well, then, raise his salary," he suggested.

Get Many Views.

Frequent consideration of a thing wears off the strangeness of it and shows it in its several lights and various ways of appearance, to the view of the mind.

Tree Was Functioning.

She (seated in park)—"Oh, Harry, we'd better be going; I'm sure I feel a raindrop." He—"Nonsense, dear! We are under a weeping willow."—Answers.

Alaska Minerals.

Alaska has produced nearly half a billion dollars' worth of minerals, and 97 per cent of this has come from her deposits of gold, copper and silver.

Sure Thing.

When a rich man turns philosopher and says money isn't everything, you can kill his argument right then and there by asking him for a loan.

EASTER FASHIONS

Tubable and Highly Fashionable BLOUSES

For the weeks when neither cloth nor tub frocks are just right the suit and blouse is a fashion-right costume.

The tuck-in has come back as a complement to the tailored suit. It often wears a jabot frill this Spring and frequently chooses a pastel shade to make itself different and interesting.

Many overblouses in English broadcloth and dimity are showing the new plaited bit effect and when a Tub Blouse has a new feature like this it is nice to own one—no, two

One of World's Most Famous Mountain Roads

Overlooking Los Angeles, Cal., is one of the world's most remarkable mountain roads, extending from Laurel canyon to the summit of Lookout mountain. While just wide enough for one vehicle, the road is perfectly safe for automobiles, as it is built to ascend by one route and descend by another.

The curves, hairpin turns, switchbacks, etc., are numerous, but all built so scientifically that there is no danger. The road is carved from the side of a hill which is so precipitous that in one place there are six levels rising one above the other, all visible from the same point; in fact, the hill appears to be terraced with the zig-zag of highway. The surface is of decomposed granite and the outside edge has been fenced with stout timbers.

From the summit—occupied by a summer hotel—one has a view that is without a rival on the Pacific coast. The ocean is but a few miles distant with the Santa Catalina and San Clemente islands on the horizon, while along the shore are the score of towns and resorts built upon the sands. About thirty cities and towns are visible from the summit, with Los Angeles almost directly below.

Immense Freak Boulder in the Berkshire Hills

Among the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts, there is a tremendous boulder, weighing some 170 tons, perched upon a flat rock, apparently so nicely balanced that a glance at it almost convinces a person that but little force is needed to throw it over.

It is called the "Balance rock," but despite its name and appearance, it is firmly fixed and makes no movement whatever. Another strange feature of this freak is that the boulder is of an entirely different formation from that of the Berkshire limestone upon which it rests, and it is supposed that in some prehistoric age it was torn from some mountain height by a glacier and at last delicately placed on the limestone bed.

At Chetyero, in Burma, British India, nature has superimposed an immense boulder upon a rocky elevation, and the natives have seized upon it as a fit place for a temple of worship. Here they have erected a small pagoda. So evenly balanced is this great stone that it sways, temple and all, back and forth when a strong wind is blowing.—Detroit News.

Definition of Factory

In modern usage the term factory covers any establishment, with its buildings and equipment, used for the manufacture of goods. The legal definition, however, varies widely in different states, but is usually based upon the number of workers. One such extreme definition makes a factory "any place where two or more persons are engaged in working for hire or reward in any handicraft." C. D. Wright's definition reads: "A factory is an establishment where several workmen are collected for the purpose of obtaining greater and cheaper conveniences for labor than they could procure individually at their houses; for producing results by their combined efforts which they could not accomplish separately, and for preventing the loss occasioned by carrying articles from place to place during the several processes necessary to complete their manufacture." Another distinguishing mark of a factory is the ownership of all the tools or implements of production by the employer.

Yucatan's Vehicles

Yucatan clings to antiquated means of transportation, which include the carreta, the coche, the volan and the volante, although the introduction of automobiles bids fair to eliminate these vehicles. The carreta is a heavy two-wheeled truck; the coche, a light four-wheeled, rubber tired, rigid topped carriage, with body supported on heavy leather straps, for travel on the rocky country roads, similar to the stage coach of America's old west, and the volante, a very heavy four-wheeled vehicle somewhat like a victoria, but with the body supported on heavy leather straps, used for rough travel in the rural districts.

Solving the Problem

A young salesman had embezzled from his kind hearted employer a considerable sum of money, and had lost every cent of it on the races. He was apprehended, and the boss didn't know just what to do about it.

"Keep him on the job and deduct what he owes you from his pay," counseled the adviser.

"But," wailed the victim, "the amount is too large. He could never make it up that way. His wages are too small."

The other ruminated for a moment. Then his face cleared.

"Well, then, raise his salary," he suggested.

Lichens Are Descendants of Prehistoric Growth

The world has more than once been startled by reports that a descendant of the monster animals which inhabited the earth before the Ice age has been seen either lifting its head out of the ocean depths or lurking in the darkness of a primordial forest.

Although none of these reports has been confirmed. But when we come to plant life we find in the lichens real prehistoric growths. The lichens we can see and examine today are similar to those which existed tens of thousands of years ago.

The growths which spread themselves over rocks and old walls are a combination of a fungus and countless thousands of algae. The fungus, unable to make its own way in the world, has enmeshed huge numbers of green algal cells, living on the food material which they produce.

That many of these plants are tens of thousands of years old is proved by the fact that by scraping away the crust of lichens the abrasions caused by the passage of ice during the glacial period are as fresh as though they had been made recently. The lichen has protected them from the weather ever since. The glacial age is said by some scientists to have ended over 80,000 years ago.—London Tit-Bits.

Every Inhabitant of Town Helps Make Muslin

Practically everybody in the little town of Tarare, with its 12,000 inhabitants, in central France, recently referred to in By the Way, is interested in the making of muslin. Quite half the population are actual workers in the mills or in their homes, where muslin is either made on household looms or covered with most beautiful embroidery.

Although the population of Tarare has diminished in recent years the muslin industry is still very remunerative, and there are some streets in which one's guide will point to the houses of men who (in France) are multi-millionaires—men of great wealth who continue to live side by side with less fortunate citizens, who "thee" and "thou" their rich neighbors as they pass them in the streets. All these people are ready to admit that they owe their prosperity and livelihood to the work and perseverance of M. Antoine Simonet; but they will also tell one that something is due to the water of the river Turdine, which gives the light cotton materials of Tarare certain incomparable qualities as regards texture and color which are recognized by women the world over.—Detroit News.

Penitentes a Strange Sect

The Penitentes, or Penitent Brothers, were once very numerous in New Mexico. They were Mexicans—very ignorant and fanatic ones.

Their strange brotherhood—a remnant and perversion of the penitent orders of the Middle ages—was active only forty days in the year, the forty days before Lent. At that time they flogged their own naked backs with cruel scourges of aloë fiber, carried enormous crosses, lay on beds of cactus, and performed similar self-tortures, making pilgrimages thus. On Good Friday they redoubled their ghastly efforts, and finally crucified upon a real cross, one of their number who was chosen by lot.

In the Middle ages nearly the whole of Europe had a strange epidemic—a fever of penitential self-whipping. The Flagellants, as they were called, paraded the streets, lashing themselves with scourges, or used the whip at home. Even kings caught the infection, and abused their own royal backs. It took centuries to eradicate this remarkable custom.—Detroit News.

Lilac Buds Protected

Lilac buds, containing twigs, leaves and blossoms in embryo form are tender and delicate and full of water, yet they are able to survive extremely cold weather in which they are frozen solid and even come unscathed through long periods of alternate freezing and thawing. Examination under the microscope reveals the secret of the extraordinary hardness of these buds. The outer sheath covering the bud is coated with wax, so that the tissues inside are hermetically sealed against outside moisture. Inside are layers of a corky substance which prevents the escape of water from the tissues. Here and there throughout the bud are spaces into which the water expands when it is converted into ice. So long as the outer sheath remains closed, and intact freezing and thawing can do no harm whatever.

A Rogues' Gallery

An elderly man of ultra-convivial habits, but withal learned and bookish, was hailed before the bar of justice in a country town.

"You're charged with being drunk and disorderly," snapped the magistrate. "Have ye anything to say why sentence should not be pronounced?"

"Man's inhumanity to man makes countless thousands mourn," began the prisoner in a flight of oratory. "I am not so debased as Poe, so profligate as Byron, so ungrateful as Keats, so intemperate as Burns, so timid as Tennyson, so vulgar as Shakespeare, so—" "That'll do, that'll do," interrupted the magistrate. "Ninety days and oner, take down that list of names he've mentioned and round 'em up. I think they're as bad as he is."—American Legion Weekly.

Floorless Bridge

New Mexico boasts of a unique automobile bridge, believed to be the first of its kind in the world. The bridge was constructed by a mail and passenger stage line to span the Macho, a creek on the route. The beams were thrown across the chasm, with no other support than the banks. Hence no concern need be had for freshets. Moreover, to save expense, as well as to secure a most effective cattle guard, no floor was laid. The automobile that traverses this bridge practically runs on a track. The track is constructed in the form of two shallow, narrow troughs, so that the tires fit in, with no danger of the machine meeting disaster. The drivers cross the bridge at full speed, with no more concern than if the bridge were of the usual sort. Nervous passengers do not enjoy this feature of the ride, however. In length the bridge is sixty-four feet and has proved most satisfactory.

Peanut Oil

Peanut oil is one of the prime necessities of the Chinese in South China, and means as much to them as olive oil to the Spaniard and as lard to the American. It is the cooking oil and foodstuff of the race. Consul Lelroy Webber reports from Hongkong that both imports and exports of the oil at Hongkong are steadily increasing. During the first quarter of 1923 imports, and exports $571,920. Large stocks of peanut oil are always maintained in Hongkong. Most of the local oil is crushed from nuts grown in the colony, in South China and in North China. Exports are shipped chiefly to nearby markets in South China, the Straits Settlement, the United States, India, China, Siam, the Philippines and Canada.

Fishes Are Good Smellers

Fishes possess a keen faculty of smelling. Examination of the nostrils of a fish reveals the fact that they are not connected with the air tube system, as in most animals, but lead into blind pockets lined with delicate membranes well supplied with nerves. In fishes, water is not drawn through the nostrils but merely into the small pockets, and these may be emptied and refilled. The quantity of water brought into contact with the nerves of smell must be comparatively small. In some few fishes, as in the globe fishes and puffers, for example, there is no nasal pocket, the nerves being directed into external projections.

Much to Be Thankful For

There is much in human life to be thankful for, as well as much to distress—mercies as well as afflictions, heroism as well as cowardice, and abundant justification for faith and hope. Nothing will contribute so much to progress, to a lightening of the burden of the mystery as a faithful, uncomplaining and cheerful performance of the ordinary daily duties and a co-operating interest in the concerns of the particular hearth and home, a lesson which some of the greatest philosophers were, and are, slow to take to heart.

The Grande Chartreuse

The Grande Chartreuse was the original monastery of the Carthusians, founded in 1084. It is situated among the mountains in the French department of Isere, about fourteen miles northeast of Grenoble, and is famous for its aromatic cordial made by the monks, the secret of which they have long possessed. The monastery was despoiled during the French revolution, and the monks expelled from 1793 to 1816. They returned after the restoration of Louis XVIII (1814), but never recovered their former wealth and influence.

Sir Roger de Coverley

The name is that of a member of an imaginary club, under whose auspices the Spectator was supposed to be edited. Sir Roger is the type of an English gentleman of the time of Queen Anne (1702-1714), and figures in thirty papers of the Spectator. He is noted for his modesty, generosity and hospitality. The name Sir Roger de Coverley was also given to a dance, similar to the Virginia reel, and supposed to have been the original of it. The title is derived from the English squire described in the Spectator.

Friction Matches

Friction matches first came into use in 1828, and as late as 1830 were regarded as too dangerous to be transported by rail. The first sulphur matches put on the market came in square blocks of wood split well down, from which individual matches might be broken. When ignited, a most offensive sulphur odor arose. The first individual matches, put up in small boxes, were imported from Sweden in the early eighties, and were a great improvement over the old sulphur match.

"From Dan to Beersheba"

The familiar expression "From Dan to Beersheba" originally was used to denote the entire extent of the holy land, and afterward applied to any region when referring to its whole length. As the Detroit News, Dan was the most northern city in the "land of promise" and Beersheba the most southern one; hence the saying "From Dan to Beersheba came to mean the entire extent of the country."

Science Now Splices Nerves

Nerve splicing, said to be the most delicate of surgical operations, is one of the latest achievements of scientific science. This consists of implanting nerves from animals in human bodies to restore health and activity to muscles weakened by disease.—Popular Science Monthly.

Fortuna for Smiles.
A Meriden (Conn.) factory superintendent's will was filed the other day, and discovery was made that he had left virtually his entire estate, valued at about $50,000, to a young man who had helped to support himself by selling newspapers. The story is that this youth had never failed to give the "lonesome old man" a smile as he passed through the factory selling his papers, and the circumstance had so impressed the latter that he has made the young man fairly independent through his will.

The Mosquito.
Outside of his fellow man, the mosquito is the most dangerous living creature to man, as more people die each year as a result of its bite than by the ravages of any other animal. The cobra snake of Indian ranks second in the number of people killed, but this is largely due to the superstitious character of the natives of India, who are afraid to kill the snakes.

Big Gypsum Bed.
A gypsum bed 99.8 per cent pure, extending ten miles inland for a mile along a branch of the Moose river, midway between Cochrane and James bay, Ontario, is said to be one of the world's most important. It was but recently discovered. The outcropping can be seen at the river's edge, where the ground is very soft.

"From time to time God drops a great idea into the soul of a great man. Often those men who live upon the existing institutions start the fire against the new idea. Sometimes they crucify its apostle; but ideas feed upon faggots, and grow through crucifixions."—Newell Dwight Hillis.

Cohens Ahead of Smiths.
The Cohens are ahead of the Smiths in the city directory of New York. The book contains 1,681 pages and weighs eleven pounds, four ounces. There are nearly 6,500 Cohens and Cohans and approximately 5,800 Smiths and Smiths. There are 233 Abraham Cohens.

Lightning Franks.
One of the strangest pranks recorded of lightning was furnished by a case where a woman who had raised her arm to close a window was struck just as she did so. She was uninjured, but her gold bracelet absolutely disappeared—it had been melted away.

Thumb Print.
Indian chiefs in their dealings with the United States government now use the finger and thumb print instead of their witnessed mark. This applies only to those Indians who cannot read or write.

Their Choices.
Mother—"So nurse is taking you to the movies? What are you going to see?" Little Willie—"I wanted to see 'Poisoned Lips,' but Bobby wants to go to 'Why Women Fall.'"—Judge.

Trapping Song Birds.
Wild song birds are caught in England by means of bird-time and nets and sold in the main streets in the large cities. The casualties among these caged birds are enormous.

Good Old Rotund Uncle Jim.
She (bantering)—"So you're going to leave me some money when you die, uncle? If I may judge from your figure, I think it will be a good round sum."

Children Ride Free.
Carfare is not needed by school children in Victoria, Australia. They are carried in street cars to and from school free of charge.

Looking Ahead.
Anyone can point out difficulties; it calls for brains and courage to look beyond difficulties to successful accomplishment.

Avoid Narrow Ledge.
So close does falsehood approach to truth that the wise man would do well not to trust himself on the narrow ledge.

Only One Standard.
We have no right to demand from other people a standard of honor which we are not prepared to concede ourselves.

Far-Fetched.
It is said married men make better clerks than single ones. They are not in such a hurry to get home of evenings.

Extraordinary Nature.
To moderate your mind and speech when you are angry, or else to hold your peace, is a sign of no ordinary nature.

About People.
People are no more alike "under the skin" than they are outside. Character and temperament are of infinite variety.

Just Think!
Do you complain of the monotony of life? Think of the watchmaker who has to wind all the watches every day.

Fear.
Fear is an untrustworthy guardian of constancy, but a kindly heart is faithful even to the end of the world.

Naturally So.
In any family there is usually the most admiration for the one who quietly and continuously makes money.

Fashion Plates of Antiquity.
The Beotian town of Tanagra was a place of some importance in ancient times, but it had long since vanished from the map, when in the early '70s of the last century the world began to hear of "Tanagra Figurines." The figurines are hollow, usually open at the base, and were cast in several pieces from molds. They show the outlines of these figurines represent women—not in the conventional manner of the Egyptian monuments, but in a photographic likeness. They show as everyday Greek womanhood of the Third and Fourth centuries before Christ, says a writer in Mentor. They reveal much about the intimate lives of Greek women, their tasks and amusements and especially the details of their dress. We see them at work in their homes or deep in the mysteries of the toilet.

Stradivarius, Violin Maker.
Antonius Stradivarius was born in 1644 at Cremona, Italy. When very young he was apprenticed to Nicola Amati, then regarded the greatest of all violin makers. The violins which Stradivarius made between 1670 and 1685 are patterned after the Amati model, says the Detroit News, and are usually described as Amati-Strads. In 1684 Amati died and bequeathed all his wood, models and tools to Stradivarius, thus providing him with a large stock of materials. The wood which made possible the high quality of his later instruments. All of Stradivarius' work was characterized by minuteness of detail, high quality of material and beauty of tone. It is estimated that he made nearly 2,000 violins, comparatively few of which are now in existence. He died at Cremona in 1737.

Pegasus, Winged Horse.
In classic myth, Pegasus was the famous winged horse that sprang from the blood of Medusa, the mortal Gorgon, when she was slain by Perseus, says the Detroit News. Pegasus dwelt at Olympus and carried thunder and lightning for Zeus. By his aid, Belshazzar conquered the Chimera. Pegasus was regarded by late writers as the horse of Eos, and was said to have revealed the famous fountain of Hippocrene on Mount Helicon by a kick of his hoof. According to a modern poetic fancy, Pegasus became the horse of the muses, and thence arose the saying, "To mount one's Pegasus," meaning to write poetry.

Spilling Salt.
Salt, as one of the essentials of human diet, possessed in other days a value almost inconceivable to us moderns. Science can now produce it readily and cheaply, but in the old days it was only obtainable in certain places, and was therefore rare and costly. Wages, indeed, were once paid partly in salt. Salt held a considerable place in many of the religions of antiquity, as being the means by which food could be preserved, and so the symbol of incorruption. In this way it was generally regarded as one of the fittest offerings to the gods, and so to spill the salt was equivalent to risking their displeasure.

Tests for Diamonds.
The true diamond is not cut by a file, has a specific gravity of 3.25 and a luster that shows clearly even when the stone is immersed in water. A small drop of water dropped on the face of a clean, dry diamond preserves its globular form and does not spread. When a fine line is drawn on a diamond with an aluminum pencil, and it is then rubbed briskly with a moistened cloth, the line disappears. The commonest test is to draw the edge of the stone over glass; the diamond cuts it without much pressure, while the imitation merely scratches it.

His Luck.
"My boy, Blister, hasn't got a lick of sense," groaned Gap Johnson of Rutapus Ridge. "He was fooling with the shotgun a spell ago, and I heard him say something about going out and taking a shot at a varmint. Next thing I knowed I was coming to myself with a welt burnt across the top of my head whur he had popped it to me. By thunder, as long as he's been acquainted with me, if he can't tell me from a varmint yet he don't know nuth'n'!"—Kansas City Star.

English Sparrow Eradication.
The English sparrow, which was introduced into this country in 1851, has become a public nuisance. It defies private and public property, destroys fruit, grain and vegetable crops, fights and drives away useful native birds, and replaces their songs with discordant sounds. The United States bureau of biological survey advises their extermination and has issued a booklet on the destruction of these unwelcome birds.

New Uses for Wood.
Chemical research is revealing new uses for wood not dreamed of a few years ago, according to a recent report from the Department of Agriculture. Wood pulp is now being used not only for paper products but also for fiber containers, wall board, and similar forms of material. Wood is already in use for the making of artificial silk, rope, carpets, and other fabrics.

Prima Facie.
Stranger (at gate)—"Is your mother at home?" Youngster—"Say! Do you suppose I'm mowing this yard because the grass is long?"—Life.

According to Moyle.
While—"Mary, let's play mamma and papa." Mary—"All right. Got a cigarette?"—Life.

The Spider.

We gave some perfunctory admiration to the landscape, which is indeed only beautiful to those who admire land, and to them perhaps the most beautiful in England. For here is the body of the great chalk spider who straddles over our island—whose legs are the south downs and the north downs and the Chilterns, and the top of whose toes poke out at Cromer and Dover. He is a clean creature, who few in body clumps, and he loves to be tickled by quickly flowing streams. He is pumpled all over with earthworms, for from the beginning of time men have sought for the privilege of standing on him, and the oldest of our temples is built upon his back.—F. M. Foster, in "The Celestial Omnibus."

Deserts Not Without Water.

The vast stretches lying between the Sierra Nevada and California and the eastern Cordilleran ranges (Rocky mountains) in the United States, and between the Pacific ocean and the eastern Sierra Madre of Mexico, comprise the great American desert, its superficially waterless. Its plains are usually barren or surface water save for an exceptional saline lagoon. Notwithstanding the apparent scarcity of water, the desert is one of the most remarkable features of the great American desert is that water has been secured often in places that have been supposed to be barren. The presence of oases and industries says

Fish Has a Nasal Pocket.

Fishes possess a small nasal cavity. An examination of the nostrils of a fish reveals the fact that they are not connected with the air tube system, as in most animals, but lead into blind pockets lined with velveteen membranes well supplied with nerves. In fishes, water is not drawn through the nostrils, but merely into the small pockets and thence may be expelled and refilled, says the Detroit News. The quantity of water brought into contact with the nerves of smell must be comparatively small. In some few fishes, as in the glove fishes and puffers, for example, there is no nasal pocket, the nerves being directed into external processes.

Diet Affects Bird Colors.

By varying the diet of birds, Professor Ehrenreich of Berlin has succeeded in changing the coloring of their feathers. Certain food will cause red and green pigments to turn yellow. His experiments tend to show that a bird's plumage depends largely on the diet. Dyestuffs contained in food save the Detroit News. Dyestuffs put in chicken feed affects the hue of egg yolks to a considerable degree. Caterpillars fed exclusively on walnut foliage become dark outside. Insects have long understood the art of changing the color of their bodies through the diet method.

Men's Souls Are Tricky Things.

As a matter of precaution I would advise women to leave the souls of men alone, especially their adolescent souls. They consist entirely of amorphous spiritual substances. They have as many rings of sentiment and vaporous eloquence around them as the planet Saturn. It is easy to guide one of the pulpy things into the church; but when you have done it you do not know whether you have committed a blessing or an act of salvation.—Cora Harris in the Saturday Evening Post.

Haddon Hall.

Haddon Hall is a famous mansion in Derbyshire, England, 23 miles north-west of Derby, which has been occupied successfully by the Avenells, Verons, and Rutlands. The building is in an excellent state of preservation and represents three different orders of architecture—the Pointel Gothic, the Tudor, and the Elizabethan. No additions to the structure have been made since the sixteenth century. Reference to Haddon Hall is made in Sir Walter Scott's "Peveril of the Peak."

Author of "Nearer, My God."

Sarah Adams (nee Flower) wrote "Nearer, My God, to Thee." It was contributed to W. J. Fox's "Hymns and Anthems" in 1841. We find in the book called "Hymns and Hymnology" that the hymn has been edited numerous times to meet the requirements of different persons. The changes and a laparotomy occurred in the 1890s as a rule.

Lots of Binder Twine.

Approximately 385,000 miles of binder twine, sufficient to stretch around the world nearly nineteen times if it was strung in one string, were required to bind America's 1923 bumper crop. American farmers used 35,000,000 pounds of binder twine in one year.

Ocean Bed Rising.

A cable ship searching for a broken cable between St. Helena and Cape Town found that the ocean bed had risen two and a quarter miles since 1890. When the original soundings were taken in that year the chart showed a depth of three miles.

Unlucky Greek Letter.

What is commonly called the unlucky Greek letter, from being used in ancient Greece by the judges on their ballots when condemning a prisoner to death. It was used because it was the first letter of the Greek word for "death."

Investigation Wanted.

"What makes you think you were defeated by Crocker?" Of course, for 100 votes in the second precinct, and the boos show that I got a total of only 158 there. Our election system is simply rotten.—Cleveland Leader.

Cook Without Fire.

The people of India, when fuel is scarce, cook an egg without fire. The egg is placed in a sling and whirled around for about five minutes, until the heat generated by the motion has cooked it.

Order of St. Charles, Monaco.

Monaco, a little country of only eight square miles, is an independent principality on the shores of the Mediterranean, near Nice. The famous town of Monte Carlo is within its boundaries. The government has an order, known as the Order of St. Charles. This order was established in 1858 by Prince Charles III to reward services rendered to the principality or to the reigning prince, says the Detroit News. Several thousand cans have been recipients of the honor. The badge is a white Maltese cross resting on a green wreath. In the center is the double monogram "C. C." and a crown on a crimson background, surrounded by the motto "Principes et Patria." The whole is surmounted by a crown. The ribbon is red, with a white band down the center.

Old Man of the Mountain.

The name is given to a huge rock on Profile mountain, in the Franconian range, New Hampshire. When viewed from certain positions, it resembles a man's face. In history this name was given to Hassan Ben Sabbah, prince or chief of a sect of the Mohammedans in Syria about 1090 A. D. Having been banished from his own country he took up his abode at Mount Lebanon and gathered a band of followers who terrorized the inhabitants. From Hassan's name they called themselves "Assassins," and they obeyed their chief so implicitly that an order to commit secret murder was never refused. Hassan and his followers sacrificed their lives for his sake, the joys of paradise would be theirs. For 200 years they continued to be the terror of the country.

Pactolus.

Pactolus was the ancient name of a small river in Lydia, Asia Minor, whose waters were said to flow over golden sands. In classic myth, Midas, king of Phrygia, foolishly besought Dionysus that all things he touched should be changed to gold. His prayer was granted, but as even the food he touched was transmuted into the precious metal, Midas implored the god to revoke the gift. He was therefore ordered to bathe in the River Pactolus, which ever after flowed over golden sands. The gold found in the bed of this river was, in reality, from Mt. Tmolus, and, according to tradition, was the principal source of wealth of the Lydian kings.

Graphite Paint.

The growing exclusion of lead from paint, on the ground of its poisonous character, has led to the introduction of graphite as a substitute, particularly in the place of red lead in the painting of iron. Mixed with linseed oil, graphite protects the iron against rust, and is much cheaper than red lead. So many new uses have been found for graphite, when not long ago was employed almost exclusively for the manufacture of what we call "lead pencils," that large quantities are now made with the electric furnace, the natural deposit of the mineral not being sufficient to supply the demand.

Medicine in Zululand.

Native doctors in Zululand collect rich fees by blowing into the ears of their patients to cast out evil spirits. The victim is seated on the blanketed floor of the outdoor surgery, and after announcing that he is to dispel the wicked demons causing the sickness, the medicine man places a horn to the patient's ear and blows. The ill one generally makes a bad face, cries "enough" and being convinced that he has been cured is troubled no more. In severe cases where the horn is not effective herbs are used as a remedy.

Personal Vanity.

There are degrees of personal vanity. The man who shaves with an old-fashioned razor feels an unapproachable superiority over the one who uses a safety.

Taking Advantage of Leap Year.

He—"Scientists say that blondes will disappear in a few years." She (seizing her opportunity)—"Well, if you want one, you'd better speak up now."

A Hot One.

Dauber—"Yes, my parents tried hard to keep me from being an artist." Critic—"I congratulate them on their success."—Boston Evening Transcript.

Just Like That.

Doctor—"Well, Thomas, how are you?" Thomas—"I be better than I was, sir, but I bain't as well as I was before I was as bad as I be now."

Lakes of Killarney.

The Lakes of Killarney in Ireland are owned by the earl of Kenmare, who has preserved his heritage from commercial encroachment.

Duty and Vice.

Duty, like vice, is often a creature of unpleasant men, but unlike vice, improves on acquaintance which isn't followed by regrets.

African Land Crabs.

African land crabs, which spend their early life in salt water, have pincers, eyes, and legs on which to wipe them.

Quite Probable.

Wonder if, in 50 years, a man with a horse and buggy won't look as queer as a man wearing a coonskin cap would now.

Dickens Opposed Orphanages.

Charles Dickens was always an opponent of orphanages, believing in private homes for parentless children.

Horse and Cow Peculiarities.

It is a peculiarity of the horse to arise on its forelegs first, while the cow first arises on its hind legs.

Crocodiles' Stomachs.

Fortuna for Smiles.
A Meriden (Conn.) factory superintendent's will was filed the other day, and discovery was made that he had left virtually his entire estate, valued at about $50,000, to a young man who had helped to support himself by selling newspapers. The story is that this youth had never failed to give the "lonesome old man" a smile as he passed through the factory selling his papers, and the circumstance had so impressed the latter that he has made the young man fairly independent through his will.

The Mosquito.
Outside of his fellow man, the mosquito is the most dangerous living creature to man, as more people die each year as a result of its bite than by the ravages of any other animal. The cobra snake of Indian ranks second in the number of people killed, but this is largely due to the superstitious character of the natives of India, who are afraid to kill the snakes.

Big Gypsum Bed.
A gypsum bed 99.8 per cent pure, extending ten miles inland for a mile along a branch of the Moose river, midway between Cochrane and James Bay, Ontario, is said to be one of the world's most important. It was but recently discovered. The outcropping can be seen at the river's edge, where the ground is very soft.

Great Ideas.
"From time to time God drops a great idea into the soul of a great man. Often those men who live upon the existing institutions start the fire against the new idea. Sometimes they crucify its apostle; but ideas feed upon faggots, and grow through crucifixions."—Newell Dwight Hillis.

Cohens Ahead of Smiths.
The Cohens are ahead of the Smiths in the city directory of New York. The book contains 1,681 pages and weighs eleven pounds, four ounces. There are nearly 6,500 Cohens and approximately 5,800 Smiths and Smiths. There are 233 Abraham Cohens.

Fashion Plates of Antiquity.
The Beotian town of Tanagra was a place of some importance in ancient times, but it had long since vanished from the map, when in the early '70s of the last century the world began to hear of "Tanagra Figurines." The figurines are hollow, usually open at the base, and were cast in several pieces from molds. They show the outlines of these figurines represent women—not in the conventional manner of the Egyptian monuments, but in a photographic likeness. They show as everyday Greek womanhood of the Third and Fourth centuries before Christ, says a writer in Mentor. They reveal much about the intimate lives of Greek women, their tasks and amusements and especially the details of their dress. We see them at work in their homes or deep in the mysteries of the toilet.

Stradivarius, Violin Maker.
Antonius Stradivarius was born in 1644 at Cremona, Italy. When very young he was apprenticed to Nicola Amati, then regarded the greatest of all violin makers. The violins which Stradivarius made between 1670 and 1685 are patterned after the Amati model, says the Detroit News, and are usually described as Amati-Strads. In 1684 Amati died and bequeathed all his wood, models and tools to Stradivarius, thus providing him with a large stock of materials. The wood which made possible the high quality of his later instruments. All of Stradivarius' work was characterized by minuteness of detail, high quality of material and beauty of tone. It is estimated that he made nearly 2,000 violins, comparatively few of which are now in existence. He died at Cremona in 1737.

Pegasus, Winged Horse.
In classic myth, Pegasus was the famous winged horse that sprang from the blood of Medusa, the mortal Gorgon, when she was slain by Perseus, says the Detroit News. Pegasus dwelt at Olympus and carried thunder and lightning for Zeus. By his aid, Belshazzar conquered the Chimera. Pegasus was regarded by late writers as the horse of Eos, and was said to have revealed the famous fountain of Hippocrene on Mount Helicon by a kick of his hoof. According to a modern poetic fancy, Pegasus became the horse of the muses, and thence arose the saying, "To mount one's Pegasus," meaning to write poetry.

Spilling Salt.
Salt, as one of the essentials of human diet, possessed in other days a value almost inconceivable to us moderns. Science can now produce it readily and cheaply, but in the old days it was only obtainable in certain places, and was therefore rare and costly. Wages, indeed, were once paid partly in salt. Salt held a considerable place in many of the religions of antiquity, as being the means by which food could be preserved, and so the symbol of incorruption. In this way it was generally regarded as one of the fittest offerings to the gods, and so to spill the salt was equivalent to risking their displeasure.

Tests for Diamonds.
The true diamond is not cut by a file, has a specific gravity of 3.25 and a luster that shows clearly even when the stone is immersed in water. A small drop of water dropped on the face of a clean, dry diamond preserves its globular form and does not spread. When a fine line is drawn on a diamond with an aluminum pencil, and it is then rubbed briskly with a moistened cloth, the line disappears. The commonest test is to draw the edge of the stone over glass; the diamond cuts it without much pressure, while the imitation merely scratches it.

His Luck.
"My boy, Blister, hasn't got a lick of sense," groaned Gap Johnson of Rutaput Ridge. "He was fooling with the shotgun a spell ago, and I heard him say something about going out and taking a shot at a varmint. Next thing I knowed I was coming to myself with a welt burnt across the top of my head whur he had popped it to me. By thunder, as long as he's been acquainted with me, if he can't tell me from a varmint yet he don't know nuth'n'!"—Kansas City Star.

English Sparrow Eradication.
The English sparrow, which was introduced into this country in 1851, has become a public nuisance. It defies private and public property, destroys fruit, grain and vegetable crops, fights and drives away useful native birds, and replaces their songs with discordant sounds. The United States bureau of biological survey advises their extermination and has issued a booklet on the destruction of these unwelcome birds.

New Uses for Wood.
Chemical research is revealing new uses for wood not dreamed of a few years ago, according to a recent report from the Department of Agriculture. Wood pulp is now being used not only for paper products but also for fiber containers, wall board, and similar forms of material. Wood is already in use for the making of artificial silk, rope, carpets, and other fabrics.

Prima Facie.
Stranger (at gate)—"Is your mother at home?" Youngster—"Say! Do you suppose I'm mowing this yard because the grass is long?"—Life.

According to Moyle.
While—"Mary, let's play mamma and papa." Mary—"All right. Got a cigarette?"—Life.

BLAME IS NOT FIXED

Coroner William Greenlee yesterday afternoon at Monongahela conducted an inquest into the death of John Craig of Knoxville, Pittsburgh, which occurred Sunday morning, April 6, in the Memorial hospital and failed to fix any responsibility. Craig suffered a severed right foot when he was fatally injured when he was run over by a street car of the Pittsburgh Railways company on Tuesday afternoon, April 8 at 5 o'clock, next Wednesday afternoon at 10 o'clock.

Coroner William Greenlee will conduct an inquest into the death of William Roule, age 5 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Roule of Hutchinson street, First ward, Monongahela, who was fatally injured when he was run over by a street car of the Pittsburgh Railways company on Tuesday afternoon, April 8 at 5 o'clock, next Wednesday afternoon at 10 o'clock.

WHEREBY PRISONERS PLAN TO ESCAPE

Philadelphia, April 11. — (United Press).—A plot by which it is said that scores of prisoners in the Eastern penitentiary were planning to escape was blocked at the prison early today.

As a result two prisoners are in punishment cells for digging a tunnel from beneath the floor of their cells through the prison wall to a man-hole in the street outside.

Warden Sanza had suspicions of the plot for the past month and today he went to the cell of Louis O'Brien and Harry Watson and found the men sitting on the bunk over a hole which lead into the man-hole in the street.

Prison authorities today are seeking to round up a number of persons who are believed to have been warning outsiders to go to help to the men when they made their break from the prison.

Fireplaces as Heaters.
One hundred years ago 50 to 55 degrees was considered a good hot temperature. Fireplaces provided the heat in those days. When stoves came into use, about seventy years ago, the temperature rose to about 62 degrees. With the increasing use of furnaces, some thirty years ago, a heat of 72 degrees was quite usual. Today a temperature of 70 degrees is considered standard.

Steel Magnetism.
The United States bureau of standards says: "Place the steel within a solenoid or between the poles of a direct-current electromagnet and subject it to the influence of a gradually decreasing magnetic field which is being reversed at a comparatively low frequency, approximately one or two cycles per second being most satisfactory."

Cossacks Claim Rodeo Idea
To prove their contention that the wild west stunts of the rodeo were offshoots of the Russian Cossack training, Prince Grey, Colonel Keroff and Captain Nureff, visitors from Russia, recently took part in a rodeo program of horsemanship, dance in their Cossack manner many of the daring stunts exhibited by the cowboys.

A Deemster.
Originally a deemster was a medieval officer in Scotland, who formally pronounced the doom or sentence of death on condemned criminals. The name is now given in the Isle of Man to two judges, who act as chief justices of the island.

Divine Wisdom.
The highest, the divine wisdom consists in having investigated and mastered the innermost nature of all that pertains to mankind, in being surprised at nothing which happens, and in believing, before the event, that everything is possible.

EMPIRE STATE TO HAVE NO DRY LAW THIS YEAR

Albany, N. Y., April 11.—(United Press).—New York state will not have a prohibition enforcement statute written on its books this year. Following a short but decisive battle, in the Senate early this morning, the proposed law was effectively killed when Senator Walker, majority leader, refused to grant a special rule bringing the three bills comprising the act out of the codes committee for consideration of the Senate. This automatically killed the measure for this, the last session of the year.

WILL INVESTIGATE SENATOR WHEELER

Washington, April 11.—(United Press).—Senate investigation of the indictment of Senator Wheeler, of Montana, is to be immediate and search for Senator Borah of Idaho said today as he prepared to organize at once his specially appointed committee of inquiry.

Borah's probe awaits only official copies of the papers in the Wheeler case, which are being kept by the court officials at Great Falls, where Wheeler was indicted.

Many Senators have criticized as ill advised and hasty the cry of "frame-up" which was raised by some of Wheeler's close friends before they had the facts in the case. Testimony given by the Senate committee investigating Harry Daugherty's charge that the Republican national committee had an agent in Great Falls and that three department of justice agents were sent there on the Wheeler case, had nothing to do.

WHERE ARE OUR WHISKY DRINKERS?

Pittsburgh, April 11. — (United Press).—Real pre-war whisky was sold here today at two cents a quart. The prohibition office sold 96 quarts of whisky to Mevey hospital for $2, and the Ohio Valley hospital bought 48 quarts for $1.

A Butter Tree.
In Asbanai grows a tree resembling in appearance the English oak, which is said to form a level of butter. This vegetable butter keeps in perfect condition all the year round in spite of the heat.

Aspirin Freshens Flowers.
The best way to revive withering flowers is to dissolve them with aspirin, according to Popular Science Monthly. An ordinary aspirin tablet dissolved in warm water will freshen the most delicate cut flowers in vases.

Tadpoles.
The young of both frogs and toads hatch as tadpoles. The tadpoles which are seen in grassy bowls eventually become frogs. They remain tadpoles for about a year. Toads remain tadpoles but a few weeks.

Way to Be Miserable.
If you want to be miserable, think about yourself about what you want, and you like, what respect people ought to pay you, and what people think of you.

Old age in a person graced with honors is attended with such respect and an outpouring of the sense of this alone is preferable to all the pleasures youth can enjoy.

The Personal Side

Ben Itzkowitz of Fallowfield avenue is a business caller in Pittsburgh today.

Mrs. D. M. Provins of Seventh street is spending the day in Pittsburgh.

Mrs. James Leaver and Miss Sarah Burns of Monongahela, were guests at the home of Mrs. L. R. Acton of 50 McKean avenue yesterday.

Dr. Keith Campbell, who has been confined to his home in Fallowfield avenue seriously ill for the past two weeks, is slightly improved today.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. McCormick and children of Oil City, are visiting with the former's mother, Mrs. Jamie Jacquelin of Ninth street for several days.

Mrs. Ethel Emerick and Mrs. Lloyd G. Wagner of McKean avenue and Mrs. A. E. Clerihue of Donora, left this morning for Pittsburgh, where they will spend the day.

W. Jones of Fallowfield avenue has returned to his home from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan, where he is a student, to spend his Easter vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Pensis and sons Joseph and Foch, and daughters, left for the home of Mrs. Charles H. Muckle, all of this place, were in the way Wednesday, where they attended the funeral services of Mrs. Theresa Dewitt, then went.

Harold R. Pettit, who has been employed as optician at the jewelry store of John B. Schaefer of McKean avenue for the past few years, left yesterday to spend a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Pettit of Polk, Pa. From there he will go to the states of California and Oklahoma, in one of which states, where he will make his future home.

A Public Barometer.

On the tower of the German museum in Munich is the dial plate of what is probably the only public barometer of its kind in existence. It shows the weather conditions for the city of Munich very accurately. The figures on the dial show the height of the mercury in centimeters; 71 is the average height of Munich, so that a swing to the right of this figure indicates fair weather, to the left bad weather. The dial on the tower is connected electrically to an ordinary spring barometer which is located elsewhere in the building and whose slightest movement is automatically followed by the tower hand. The dial is over eighteen feet in diameter and the golden hand weighs nearly a hundred pounds.

Forests of Canada.

Of the total area of forests in the British empire, Canada holds more than 70 per cent. In Canada more than 87 per cent of the forest area is publicly owned. The Canadian people draw from their forest possessions the annual revenue of $500,000,000 representing the production of all branches of their forest industries. More than 100,000 men are engaged in Canada converting forest products into wealth in some form or other. Nearly 400,000 other people depend on this "forest army" for their food and shelter. In the pulp and paper mills are 33,000 men, drawing $40,000,000 a year in wages. The lumber industry pays 55,000 men $60,000,000 annually.

Invisible Fineness.

Tung-tan, the metal of which the modern electric bulb filament is made, can be drawn into wire so fine as to be invisible to the naked eye except when held against the sunlight. A pierced diamond is used as the die through which the wire is drawn. This very fine tungsten wire is used chiefly in fuses for delicate electrical experimental instruments, where the slightest excess in current would destroy the intricate and costly apparatus. When such a rise in the current occurs the tungsten wire melts and the circuit is broken.

Tolstoy's Opinion of Women.

In a recently published volume of reminiscences, Alexander Borisovich Goldenweiser, a Russian pianist and an intimate friend of Tolstoy, says that one day the great writer who was perhaps the greatest feminist of the century, remarked to him "If you won't repeat it, I'll tell you confidentially: women are generally so evil that there is scarcely any difference between a good woman and a bad one." Mr. Goldenweiser apparently does not explain this extraordinary remark, which may have been made in a mood of levity, or perhaps when Tolstoy was suffering from indigestion.

Flying Speed of Birds.

The crow is the least rapid of a list of 22 migratory birds, flying at insignificant average of 45 feet a second, or 31 miles an hour. The worst combination between temperature and humidity are cold damp air, warm moist air and excessively dry air artificially warmed. The comfort zone lies between 65 and 70 degrees Fahrenheit, with a humidity between 30 and 35 per cent. The average indoor room in winter has a humidity between 15 and 22 per cent, and to offset the great loss of body heat which this causes the temperature is kept far too high.—H. Gela.

In Society's Realm

The Isabel Thoburns of the Methodist Episcopal church were entertained at the home of Mrs. Joseph Thoburn of the Penny apartments last evening. With 20 members present, an enjoyable evening was spent in sewing and social converse. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Raymond Small and Mrs. Russel Bucy.

Invitations have been issued announcing the first appearance in Monessen of Charles L. Fisher and his Radio Eight orchestra of Kalamazoo, Michigan for a dance to be held in the Moose hall, Tuesday evening, April 22. This orchestra is just returning home after a season's engagement at the Wofford Hotel, Miami Beach, Florida. Dancing will be in order from 9 to 1 o'clock.

James Murphy, son of Chief and Mrs. James A. Murphy of 718 Fallowfield avenue, was accorded a birthday party Wednesday evening in honor of twenty-five small boys and girls present spent a delightful evening in games, followed by the serving of a dainty luncheon by Mrs. Murphy assisted by Mrs. Richard Thoburn. James was the recipient of many appropriate gifts.

The Leah Gelder Memorial Circle, of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church held its regular meeting in the Sunday School room last evening. The meeting was in charge of the vice president, Virginia Menon. A letter from a missionary in China was read. The lesson was discussed by Harner Myers and Stella Carter. Four new members were proposed. A pleasant social hour was spent with the hostesses, Misses Alice and Alene Soupley, Clara Albson and Mary Stauser.

A very delightful evening was spent by the members of the Friendship Euchre club in their regular bi-monthly held last evening at the home of Mrs. William Feeney of Lookout avenue. Three tables were in play and the favors were awarded to Mrs. Mary Leggon, Mrs. Della Cooper, Mrs. A. Maynard and Mrs. Vera Cahstri. Miss Alice Feeney assisted with the serving of a dainty luncheon by the hostess. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. J. J. Monstaux of Lookout avenue, April 24.

The members of the Jane Allen Society of the Christ Lutheran church were entertained by Miss Sara Meek of Eighth street last evening with a good attendance. During the business session plans were made for a Mother's Day Party. Committees were appointed by the president, Mrs. Maude Brouse. The minutes of the previous meeting were also read by the secretary, Miss Charlotte Horst. Dr. and Mrs. C. B. King and Mrs. Walter Wilson were the visiting guests present. Near the close of the evening the members gathered into the dining room, where a dainty luncheon was served. Small baskets were given as favors.

Thirty-seven members of the Ladies Aid of the Washington Avenue Presbyterian church spent a delightful evening at the home of Mrs. E. H. Bradley of Fallowfield avenue last night. The meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Harry Lovstetter, followed by a social hour. Fancy work and social converse were the main diversions. Before the members adjourned dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Wilbur Mills, Mrs. Bert Mitchell, Mrs. William Stockwell, Mrs. Alice Caspiar and Miss Emma Parks. Last evening at the home of Mrs. Anna Eggleston of the Collins apartment, the members of the Polyantha Society of the Christ Lutheran church, 14 in number, held their regular meeting. After a short business meeting a social hour was enjoyed. A delicious luncheon was served by the hostess.

Air in Rooms Usually Is Too Dry for Health

Most authorities agree that the factors that distinguish good from bad air are proper temperature, proper humidity and adequate movement. The temperature of rooms for health is about 72 degrees Fahrenheit. Most Americans like the temperature much higher and complain of feeling chilly when it is at this level.

Why? The principal reason is that the air is too dry. Dry air means that excessive evaporation of moisture takes place from the skin, mouth and nose, and this evaporation takes heat from the body. The worst combinations between temperature and humidity are cold damp air, warm moist air and excessively dry air artificially warmed.

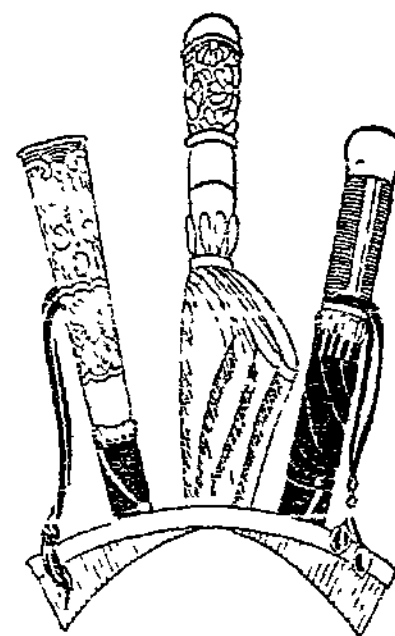

The comfort zone lies between 65 and 70 degrees Fahrenheit, with a humidity between 30 and 35 per cent. The average indoor room in winter has a humidity between 15 and 22 per cent, and to offset the great loss of body heat which this causes the temperature is kept far too high.—H. Gela.

Metals Are Transparent When Subjected to Heat

Very thin films of certain metals become transparent at heats not nearly sufficient to melt them. For instance, if we take a sheet of gold leaf somewhat thinner than the paper on which this is printed and heat it by an electrical current to a temperature of about 2,400 degrees Fahrenheit, it will become as transparent as a pane of green colored glass. If carefully heated from drafts very much finer sheets of gold leaf can thus be heated by clamping them on wires of malleable iron and applying the current through the metal strips which clamp each end of the sheet.

When this is done with gold leaf of about one-hundredth the thickness of ordinary paper and the current is gradually increased until the temperature reaches 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit, the leaf becomes not only transparent but transparent, so that it is actually possible to see through it. For apparently the same reason silver foil which requires only 2,250 degrees to make it clearly transparent, shows a bluish-violet tint. Copper foil has also been made transparent in this way, but remains so only for a short time, as it combines with the oxygen of the air when thus heated, and the resulting compound is not transparent.

Arizona Copper Mine Has Steepest Incline.

The Shannon incline, which is used to handle ore at copper mines in Arizona, is a notable piece of mechanical construction. It has a length of 1,700 feet and a vertical drop of 800 feet. It is said to be the steepest incline anywhere.

One of the difficult problems met with in mining in many places is the transportation of ores and supplies up and down mountain sides. Some of the most valuable mines are not infrequently situated far up the side of a mountain. It may be impracticable or impossible to bring the ore down by ordinary methods of transportation such as wagons or trucks or upon the backs of burros. In such event the only solution of the problem is to build aerial tramways or inclines.

Now the Shannon incline is built of 35 pound steel rails. The track consists of five parallel rails. It has a 40-inch gauge, upon which the ore skips operate, and a 20 inch gauge for the small supply trucks. Special attention was given to providing a solid roadbed and in laying large round ties in the construction of the road. The ties are six by ten inches in size. The two ore skips are operated by gravity.

Origin of the Ring.

One of the earliest examples of the use of rings in statuary was in the statue of Prometheus, who, having been released from bondage on the intercession of Venus, wore a ring with a small piece of the Caucasus in it to show that he was still chained to the Caucasus. The idea of a ring being a sign of bondage has continued since those days. Bishops and doctors wore rings by right because they had signed away their independence in order to Rest From Labor.

Controlled experiments made upon large numbers of women working at all kinds of tasks have shown that to prevent overfatigue one must rest at regular intervals, not just at will, but quite arbitrarily. Wherever regular recesses have been used among women in factories, the workers have more than made up for the time lost. They have become less tired from their labors.

PLANS A "CLEANUP"

Frank A. Vanderlip, former New York banker, has established an office in Washington, D. C., to "cleanup" government graft. He declares it is not a political campaign, but a free will offering to honest American citizens. Photo shows the members of the Citizens Federal Research Bureau; left to right: Mr. Boyd Fisher, Treasurer; Mr. John Pearman, Secretary, and Mr. Vanderlip, President.
